

Financial overview Anan Clinica 2013

During 2013 we continued with the activistas program under the supervision of Feliciano. In 2013 five students went to Nanatha to carry out a special project together with the activistas on behalf of Anan Clinica. The topics that were covered were family planning, mother and child and malnutrition. In addition time was spent to set up a small shop in the village to give the opportunity to buy the supplies that are discussed during trainings (e.g. condoms and mosquito nets).

In line with previous years, we also managed in 2013 to keep the administrative, bank and IT cost at a minimum. So almost 97% of the budget was spent on local costs. The local costs entail the salary of the local project manager Feliciano, the costs for running our activistas program and costs that are made by the students to run their special projects.

To run Anan Clinica we fully depend on donations and so we are very grateful for the donations we have received in 2013.
